Chronic Pain & Fatigue Management

Chronic pain and fatigue is frustrating and often debilitating. Pain is considered chronic when it continues for at least six months. Chronic pain sufferers have often been to multiple health care professionals and have received various forms of treatment. Many times they do not fully respond to this treatment and their painful symptoms continue which often leaves them dependent on passive therapies and medication. The resulting stress this condition causes can become overwhelming for the patient and their families. However, there is hope for those who are not afraid to take that difficult first step and work with their physician and our physical therapy team. We begin to teach special techniques which help each patient to learn how to control and manage their painful condition and it works! Patients with chronic pain must take an active role in the treatment of their condition if they are to improve the quality of their life. Since 1990, Allcare has been helping patients with chronic pain learn how to effectively decrease and manage their symptoms while improving their functional capabilities. The highly trained staff at Allcare desires to help each patient with chronic pain learn how to manage their symptoms and take that first step. Together we do make a difference.
